```
In [1]: import pandas as pd import numpy as np
In [2]:
    file=pd.read_csv("/content/Churn_Modelling.csv") dfspd.DataFrame(file)
    df.head()
Out[2]: RowNumber Customerld Surname CreditScore Geography Gender Age Tenure
                                                                                      Balance NumOfProducts HasCrCard IsActiveMember EstimatedSalary Exited
                    1 15634602 Hargrave
                                                  619
                                                          France Female 42
                                                                                         0.00
                                                                                                                                           101348.88
                 2 15647311 Hill 608
                                                       Spain Female 41
                                                                                  1 83807.86
                                                                                                                                           112542.58
                                                                                                                                   0
        2
                    3 15619304
                                    Onio
                                                 502
                                                          France Female 42
                                                                                  8 159660.80
                                                                                                                                           113931.57
                    4 15701354 Boni 699 France Female 39
                                                                                                                                            93826.63
        3
                                                                                         0.00
                                                                                                                                                         0
                    5 15737888 Mitchell
         4
                                                850
                                                        Spain Female 43
                                                                                  2 125510.82
                                                                                                                                            79084.10
In [3]: df['HasCrCard'] = df['HasCrCard'].astype('category')
In [4]:
    df['IsActiveMember'] = df['IsActiveMember'].astype('category')
    df['Exited'] = df['Exited'].astype('category')
In [5]: df = df.drop(columns=['RowNumber', 'CustomerId', 'Surname'])
In [6]: df.head()
```

Out[6]:		CreditScore	Geography	Gender	Age	Tenure	Balance	NumOfProducts	HasCrCard	IsActiveMember	EstimatedSalary	Exited
	0	619	France	Female	42	2	0.00	1	1	1	101348.88	1
	1	608	Spain	Female	41	1	83807.86	1	0	1	112542.58	0
	2	502	France	Female	42	8	159660.80	3	1	0	113931.57	1
	3	699	France	Female	39	1	0.00	2	0	0	93826.63	0
	4	850	Spain	Female	43	2	125510.82	1	1	1	79084.10	0

- 1. Perform Below Visualizations.
- Univariate Analysis Bi Variate Analysis Multi Variate Analysis

```
import seaborn as sns density = df['Exited'].value_counts(normalize=True).reset_index() sns.barplot(data=density, x='index', y='Exited', ); density
```

```
Out[7]: index Exited
0 0 0.7963
1 1 0.2037
```

The data is significantly imbalanced

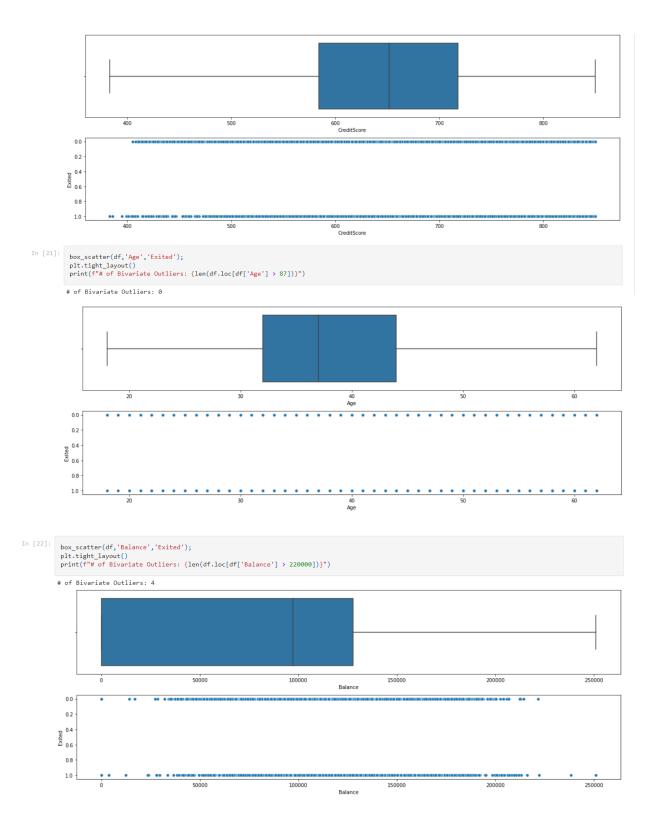

```
import matplotlib.pyplot as plt categorical = df.drop(columns=['CreditScore', 'Age', 'Tenure', 'Balance', 'EstimatedSalary']) \\ rows = int(np.ceil(categorical.shape[1] \ / \ 2)) \ - \ 1
        # create sub-plots anf title them
        fig, axes = plt.subplots(nrows=rows, ncols=2, figsize=(10,6)) axes = axes.flatten() for row in range(rows):
   cols = min(2, categorical.shape[1] - row*2)
   for col in range(cols):
      col_name = categorical.columns[2 * row + col]
      ax = axes[row*2 + col] {\tt sns.countplot(data=categorical, x=col_name, hue="Exited", ax=ax);}
        plt.tight_layout()
                                                                  Exited
0 4000
                                                                                4000
          3000 3000 8 <sub>2000</sub>
       1 2000
2000
                                                                                1000
                       France Exited Exited 4000
                                                                                                   5000
                                                0
                                                                                                                                                                                 0
                                                                                                                                                                                 1
                                                                                                   4000
    3000
5 2000
                                                                                                   3000 2000
   1000
                                                                                                   1000
        0 - 0 NumOfProducts
                                                                                                                                             HasCrCard
```

1. Perform descriptive statistics on the dataset.

.]: _		CreditScore	Age	Tenure	Balance	NumOfProducts	EstimatedSalary count	10000.000000	10000.000000	10000.000000	10000.000000	10000.000000	10000.000000 mean	650.528800	38.921800	5.012800	76485.889288	1.530200	100090.239881
	std	96.653299	10.487806	2.892174	62397.405202	0.581654	57510.492818
	min	350.000000	18.000000	0.000000	0.000000	1.000000	11.580000
	25%	584.000000	32.000000	3.000000	0.000000	1.000000	51002.110000
	50%	652.000000	37.000000	5.000000	97198.540000	1.000000	100193.915000
	75%	718.000000	44.000000	7.000000	127644.240000	2.000000	149388.247500
	max	850.000000	92.000000	10.000000	250898.090000	4.000000	199992.480000

```
1. Handle the Missing values.
 In [12]: df.isna().sum() CreditScore
 Out[12]:
             Geography
             Gender Age Tenure
             Balance NumOfProducts
             HasCrCard
             IsActiveMember
             EstimatedSalary
Exited
             dtype: int64 unique of Geography is 3 they are {'Spain', 'Germany', 'France'} unique of Gender is 2 they are {'Male', 'Female'} unique of MasCrCard is 2 they are {0, 1} unique of ISACtiveMember is 2 they are {0, 1} unique of Exited is 2 they are {0, 1} 1. Find the outliers and replace the outliers def box_scatter(data, x, y):
    fig, (ax1, ax2) = plt.subplots(nrows=2, ncols=1, figsize=(16,6)) sns.boxplot(data=data, x=x, ax=ax1) sns.scatterplot(data=data, x=x,y=y,ax=ax2) box_scatter(df,'Age','Exited');
plt.tight_layout()
print(f"# of Bivariate Outliers: {len(df.loc[df['Age'] > 87])}")
             # of Bivariate Outliers: 3 50
                                                                                                                    60
                                                                                                                                          70 0.0
                0.2
                0.8
                                                                                              50
```

```
In [17]:
    box_scatter(df,'Balance','Exited');
    plt.tight_layout()
    print(f"# of Bivariate Outliers: {len(df.loc[df['Balance'] > 220000])}")
                     # of Bivariate Outliers: 4
                                                                                       50000
                                                                                                                                      100000
                                                                                                                                                                                      150000
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     200000
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     250000
                                                                                                                                                              Balance
                         0.0
                         0.2
                     0.4
0.6
                         0.8
                                                                                       50000 100000
                                                                                                                                                                                      150000
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     200000
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     250000
                                                                                                                                                              Balance
                    box_scatter(df,'EstimatedSalary','Exited');
plt.tight_layout()
  In [18]:
                                                                                                                                                        100000
EstimatedSalary
                                                                                                                                                                                            125000
                                                                    25000
                                                                                                  50000 75000 150000
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        175000
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       200000
                       0.0
                       0.2
                   0.4
0.6
                       0.8
                       1.0
                                                                                                                                                        100000 EstimatedSalary
                                                                    25000
                                                                                                                                 75000
                                                                                                                                                                                            125000
                                                                                                                                                                                                                           150000
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        175000
                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       200000 Removing outliers
                  for i in df:
    if df[i].dtype=='int64' or df[i].dtypes=='float64':
        q1=df[i].quantile(0.25)
        q3=df[i].quantile(0.75)
        iqr=q3-q1
        upper=q3+1.5*iqr lower=q1-1.5*iqr df[i]=np.where(df[i] >upper, upper, df[i]) df[i]=np.where(df[i] <lower, lower, df[i])</pre>
                  After replacing outliers
In [20]: box_scatter(df,'CreditScore','Exited');
    plt.tight_layout()
    print(f"# of Bivariate Outliers: {len(df.loc[df['CreditScore'] < 400])}")</pre>
                  # of Bivariate Outliers: 19
```

1. Check for Categorical columns and perform encoding

```
In [23]: from sklearn preprocessing import LabelEncoder encoder=LabelEncoder()
         for i in df:
           if df[i].dtype=='object' or df[i].dtype=='category':
              df[i]=encoder.fit_transform(df[i])
          1. Split the data into dependent and independent variables
 In [24]: x=df.iloc[:,:-1]
        x.head()
 Out[24]: CreditScore Geography Gender Age Tenure Balance NumOfProducts HasCrCard IsActiveMember EstimatedSalary
                    0 0 42.0 2.0 0.00 1.0 1 1
        0 619.0
                                                                                   101348.88
        1 608.0 2 0 41.0 1.0 83807.86 1.0 0 1 112542.58
        2 502.0 0 0 42.0 8.0 159660.80 3.0 1 0
                                                                                   113931.57
        3 699.0 0 0 39.0 1.0 0.00 2.0 0 93826.63
        4 850.0 2 0 43.0 2.0 125510.82 1.0 1 1
                                                                                   79084.10
In [25]: y=df.iloc[:,-1]
        y.head()
Out[25]: 0 1 0
       Name: Exited, dtype: int64
        1. Scale the independent variables
In [26]: from sklearn.preprocessing import StandardScaler scaler=StandardScaler() x=scaler.fit_transform(x)
In [27]: x
1. Split the data into training and testing
 In [28]:
    from sklearn.model_selection import train_test_split x_train,x_test,y_train,y_test=train_test_split(x,y,test_size=0.33)
 In [29]: x_train.shape
 Out[29]: (6700, 10)
 In [30]: x_test.shape
 Out[30]: (3300, 10)
 In [31]: y_train.shape
 Out[31]: (6700,)
 In [32]: y_test.shape
 Out[32]: (3300,)
```